Austin Free-Net News & Information

October 2013

Dear Friend,

Happy New Year! No, your calendar isn't wrong. At AFN, we just started our new program year, and we are excited about sharing the new opportunities and partnerships ahead.

We were recently awarded a grant from Google Fiber to continue our digital inclusion work. More detailed information about this dynamic technology partnership will be shared in the months ahead. We are thankful for their continued support.

Did you know that we also help small organizations with technology challenges, as well as individuals? Thanks to a sponsorship, we are now advertising our IT services across multiple technology platforms (i.e. smart phones and computer monitors) to small companies and organizations. Maxpoint Express, an online advertising agency, is helping us to get our message heard throughout the Greater Austin community.

We are also excited about our new tagline "Empowerment Through Technology." Soon, you will see the tagline on new marketing materials. Thank you for your continued support.

Sincerely,

Juanita Budd
Executive Director

ARCH Photo Exhibit

On Sept 20, the Austin Resource Center for the Homeless held an open house for supporters and showcased an exhibit featuring photographs from AFN's Getting It Done program. The photos showed clients proudly displaying signs with messages about their technology and employment accomplishments next to signs asking for help. The display will be an inspirational reminder to people visiting the ARCH.
